

Informationen for Students of the Double Degree Programme in Development Economics in Cooperation with Stellenbosch University, South Africa

I. Profile of the Double Degree Programme (120 ECTS)

The two-year double degree master's programme in development economics is jointly offered by Stellenbosch University and the University of Göttingen. The programme is a partnership that offers students the opportunity to earn both a Master of Science (M.Sc.) in Development Economics offered by the Faculty of Business and Economics, University of Göttingen, and a Master of Commerce (MCom) in Economics offered by the Department of Economics at Stellenbosch University. Stellenbosch University is one of the leading universities in South Africa and known for its high quality post graduate programmes in economics.

The joint curriculum is a unique combination of the different foci in teaching and research in development economics at both universities. The master's programme in development economics in Göttingen offers research oriented courses with a strong focus on quantitative methods. At Stellenbosch University participants will be offered a broad range of courses with an emphasis on case studies and the analysis of the economic and socio-economic situation in South Africa.

Participants of the Double Degree Programme spend their first semester at the University of Göttingen before leaving to study at Stellenbosch University for their second and third semester. Students will then return to Göttingen to complete their studies in their fourth semester. Participants have the choice to write their master's thesis either at Stellenbosch University or at the University of Göttingen.

Upon completion of the 120 ECTS (credit) of the programme, and having satisfied all the graduation requirements of both universities, participants will receive two separate and nationally recognised master's degree certificates: a Master of Commerce in Economics, awarded by Stellenbosch University and a Master of Science in Development Economics, awarded by the University of Göttingen. Both certificates state that the degree is awarded within a joint programme and indicate that the respective certificates are valid only in conjunction with the other certificate. The Double Degree Programme enables participating students to complete two degrees within four semesters (normally requiring three years, since the Stellenbosch programme is a one year master's programme and the Göttingen programme is a two year master's programme).

Language of instruction in both universities is English.

II. Curriculum for Students with Home University Göttingen

The structure of the programme:

- | | |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------|------|
| 1. Mandatory courses (Volkswirtschaftliche Vertiefung, Göttingen) | 30 C |
| 2. Study Abroad (Stellenbosch) | 30 C |
| 3. Master's Thesis (Göttingen or Stellenbosch) | 30 C |
| 4. Specialization (Spezialisierungsstudium, Göttingen) | 30 C |

The double degree programme starts in the winter semester, so application is not possible for the summer semester. Due to a different start of the academic year (October in Göttingen and February in Stellenbosch) and hence different lecture periods in the partner universities the Double Degree Programme has a special structure and time schedule.

Participants spend their first semester (winter semester, starting October) at the University of Göttingen, taking primarily the mandatory courses in the M.Sc. Development Economics programme.

At the end of January participants leave for Stellenbosch/ South Africa. In case participants have to take exams for their first semester mandatory courses in February, they can do so while they are in Stellenbosch, writing their exams at the same time as their fellow students in Göttingen.

From end of January until end of November students spend their second and third semester in Stellenbosch, taking the mandatory courses and electives of the MCom in Economics Programme at Stellenbosch University. The courses from Stellenbosch University will be acknowledged as part of the M.Sc. in Development Economics Programme at the University of Göttingen.

The fourth and last semester (summer semester) will be spent at the University of Göttingen. Participants will be given the opportunity to specialize in various fields of development economics and to do so they can choose among a broad range of electives in agricultural economics, global health, behavioural development economics and other prominent fields of development economics.

In between the end of semester in Stellenbosch (end of November) and the beginning of the lecture period at the University of Göttingen (April) participants are expected to write their 17-week master's thesis. Participants can choose whether they want to stay at Stellenbosch University or return to Göttingen for their master thesis. Participants earn 30 credits for their master thesis. They can choose a first supervisor either from Stellenbosch University or from the University of Göttingen. The choice of first supervisor determines the examination regulations for the master's thesis. Students who choose their first supervisor from the University of Göttingen do not have an oral defence of their master's thesis. The second supervisor has to be chosen from the partner university. The coordinators from both partner universities will support the participants in finding suitable supervisors for their favorite master's thesis topic. The master's thesis will be acknowledged as master's thesis for both degrees of the Double Degree Programme.
